

Al Risalah Nursery

Behaviour Policy 2024

At Al Risalah Nursery, we are committed to establishing a clear code of behaviour for all children, promoting a sense of right and wrong by teaching appropriate conduct and discouraging unacceptable behaviour.

We believe every child has the right to feel valued, respected, and safe. We strive to create an environment where they can learn and explore without fear of harm. Our goal is to empower all children to cultivate confidence, self-esteem, and a positive outlook on their own learning and interactions with others.

This policy outlines our approach to behaviour and developmental processes. Furthermore, we believe that collaborating with parents and caregivers can lead to a unified approach to behaviour management.

The policy provides guidelines on how to support this vision; it recognises that learning self-regulation and socially appropriate behaviour is a developmental process and that modelling positive behaviour, managing challenging behaviour appropriately and competently, we can provide for the needs of the individual as well as ensuring the safety and well-being of everyone at Al Risalah Nursery.

We aim to present all children with a code of behaviour. We promote the development of a sense of right and wrong by teaching your child the appropriate way to act and discouraging unacceptable behaviour.

Sometimes it is necessary to help children understand their own boundaries in certain situations, explaining why we do not accept certain behaviours.

There are 3 characteristics that we are aiming to develop which underpin good behaviour.

1. Confidence
2. Communication
3. Co-operation

Children often present with challenging behaviour due to unlearned responses to feelings like boredom, anxiety, fear, curiosity, tiredness, independence and anger/frustration.

Therefore, we will aim to teach children to be kind and considerate through promoting positive behaviour, planning resources and activities which underpin our personal, social and emotional development, and our nurturing programme to promote Islamic values, as well as through play. For example, role play various scenarios, utilise stories, including stories of the prophets, that convey Islamic and British values, encourage healthy and joyful friendships and employ colour monster to assist children in expressing their emotions and becoming more emotionally aware.

Promoting Positive behaviour

For children to follow and co-operate with routines and “expected behaviour” we need to promote positive behaviour by:

- Being a good role model; setting a good example
- Consistency; apply rules uniformly
- Positive reinforcement; reward good behaviour

- Opportunity for change; allow children to improve their behaviour
- Using positive body language; engage at the child's level

We believe that children thrive when their Personal, Social and Emotional needs are met alongside clear, developmentally appropriate behaviour expectations. We emphasize:

- Respect and recognition- valuing unique contributions and being considerate of feelings
- Freedom and responsibility- allowing self-expression in a supporting environment that encourages decision making and reflection on consequences
- Inclusion- providing equitable access to learning, considering diverse needs and backgrounds
- Honesty- fostering open and honest communication
- Safety and trust, ensuring everyone feels comfortable expressing concerns and fears, promoting emotional and physical well-being

Preventing strategies

Engaging with young children who exhibit challenging behaviour requires patience, understanding, and effective strategies. We will focus on:

- Positive reinforcement; acknowledge and praise good behaviour to encourage its recurrence
- Consistent routines; establishing a predictable routine helps children feel secure and understand what is to be expected of them as consistency can reduce anxiety and challenging behaviours
- Clear expectations; clearly communicate rules and expectations using simple language and visual aids to help children understand what acceptable behaviour is
- Emotional regulation; teach children to recognise and manage their emotions with support
- Engaging activities/environment; provide engaging and age-appropriate activities that capture children's interest
- Calming/reflective time; if a child is overwhelmed, a short break can help them to regain control of their emotions. Use this time to help them calm down or engage in a calming activity
- Communication; encourage open communication. Let children express themselves and actively listen to concerns. Support children to label their feelings. This can help them feel valued and reduce frustration
- Collaborative problem-solving; involve children in finding solutions to their behaviour. Ask for their input on how they may handle a situation differently next time

Intervention/Management

We do not condone physical punishment, e.g smacking, shaking or slapping, raised/intimidating shouting voice at individual or groups of children and believe that negative language such as "no" and "naughty" are unhelpful and leave no room for improvement.

If a child presents us at any time with unacceptable behaviour, staff will approach the situation in the following way:

- Intervene immediately to identify the cause of the conflict
- Engage with the children involved to understand and label their feelings and reactions to the situation.
- Communicate; ask each child how they feel and how the other must be feeling so that both may realise that it is not just one person involved.
- A gentle calm tone will be used as well as child-friendly, age- appropriate language when addressing inappropriate behaviour
- No child will be made to say “sorry” if they do not wish to. Alternative such as giving a comforting hug, drawing a picture, Makaton signing for sorry can be used, or asking the child “what can I do to cheer you up?” will be suggested
- Where disputes over toys arise, the children will be encouraged to use a sand timer or will be redirected to another activity/toy while waiting for their turn
- treats like pudding/snacks will not be withheld in the instance of unwanted behaviour
- Where possible staff will anticipate and defuse difficult situations before disagreements arise that child might find hard to handle
- Always reassure the child that it is the behaviour which is unacceptable and not the child

Achieving positive behaviour

Our setting believes that children flourish best when their personal, social, and emotional needs are met and where there are clear and developmentally appropriate expectations for their behaviour.

Children need to learn to consider the views and feelings, needs and rights, of others and the impact that their behaviour has on people, places, and objects. This is a developmental task that requires support, encouragement, teaching and setting the correct example. The principles that underpin how we achieve positive and considerate behaviour exist within the programme for promoting personal, social, and emotional development.

If all the above have been tried consistently and there is still a need for modification of behaviour, the following methods will apply:

- At all times praise is freely given to the child at the slightest sign of positive change in behaviour.
- During this period the Manager will talk with the parent/career to inform them of the situation and to ask if they are experiencing similar difficulties.
- Advice will be given if it is needed regarding help from outside agencies. e.g. SENCO, Health Visitor or GP.

- A record will be kept of incidents which occur, and daily written observations made to learn what the trigger cause was.
- We will use ABC (Antecedent, Behaviour, Consequence) forms to ascertain if there is a pattern, trigger, frequency, what happens before and after.

Biting Policy

Biting is fairly, common amongst young children and it is one of the things that concerns adults the most. Evidence suggests that up to a quarter of all very young children will bite others at some stage. Young children bite of a variety of reasons (see below for more details) such as teething or exploring a new/ toy object with their mouth in infancy. As children begin to understand cause-and-effect, they also might bite a person to see if they can get a reaction.

Biting can be a way for toddlers to get attention or express how they feel. Frustration, anger and fear are strong emotions, and young children lack the language skills to communicate how they are feeling, resorting to biting. As language improves biting tends to lessen.

Nevertheless, this behaviour can be distressing to both the child who is bitten and the one who bites. We understand this is a difficult situation for parents whether it is your child that has bitten or your child that has been responsible for biting.

Biting is often very painful and frightening for the child who is bitten. It can also be frightening for the child who bites, because it upsets the child and causes upset to the adults/parents. The first step in learning to control it is to look at why it may be happening using the ABC chart.

Why children bite

Children bite for many reasons and we aim to handle any biting incident with respect and sensitivity for all involved. It is the nursery's policy to deal with each biting incident on a case basis making sure that parents/carers involved are kept up to date with what is happening, but at the same time respecting the confidentiality of the children involved.

Whilst biting is more common at nursery or in other group situations than at home, a biting incident is not a negative reflection on the biter, the staff or the nursery. We have very clear behavioural expectations at the nursery and children are expected and encouraged to share, wait their turn, be respectful and play happily together.

Exploration:

Babies and toddlers learn by touching, smelling, hearing, and tasting. If you give a baby a toy, one of the first places it goes to is the mouth. "Tasting" or "mouthing" objects is something that all children do. Young children do not always understand the difference between gnawing on a toy and biting someone.

Teething:

Children begin teething around the ages of four to seven months. Swelling gums can be tender and can cause a great deal of discomfort. Babies sometimes find relief from this discomfort by chewing on something. Sometimes the object they chew is a real person! Children this age do not truly understand the difference between chewing on a person or a toy.

Cause and effect:

Around the age of 12 months, babies become interested in finding out what happens when they do something. When they bang a spoon on the table, they discover that it makes a loud sound. When they drop a toy from their cot, they discover that it falls. They may also discover that when they bite someone, they get a reaction.

Attention:

Older toddlers may sometimes bite to get attention. When children are in situations where they feel that they are not receiving enough attention they often find a way to make others sit up and take notice. Being ignored is not fun! Biting is a quick way to become the centre of attention – even if it is negative attention.

Imitation:

Older toddlers love to imitate others. Watching others and trying to do what they do is a great way to learn things. Some children see others bite and decide to try it out themselves.

Independence:

Toddlers are trying so hard to be independent – “mine” and “me do it’ are favourite words. Learning to do things independently, making choices, and needing control over a situation are part of growing up. Biting is a powerful way to control others. If you want a toy or want a playmate to leave you alone or move out of your way, it is a quick way to get what you want.

Frustration:

Young children experience a lot of frustration. Growing up is a struggle. Drinking from a cup is great yet nursing or sucking from a bottle is also wonderful. Sometimes it would be nice to remain a baby! Toddlers do not always have good control over their bodies. A loving pat sometimes turns into a push. Toddlers cannot always express themselves. They sometimes have trouble in asking for things or requesting help.

They have not yet learned how to interact with others. At times, when they are unable to find the words to express their feelings, they resort to hitting, pushing, or biting.

Stress:

A child’s world can be stressful too. A lack of interesting things to do, or insufficient interaction with adults is stressful situations for children. Children also experience traumatic events in their lives, such as bereavement, moving to a new home, or even starting a new nursery. Biting is one way to express feelings and relieve tension. Young children are not always able to fully understand what they are feeling, they just act.

What we can do

Use the who, what, when and where method to pinpoint the problem:

- Who was involved?
- What happened before or after? How was the situation handled?
- When did the biting occur?
- Where did it happen?

Try prevention:

If you determine that the biting occurs as the result of exploration or teething, you may want to provide the child with a teething ring.

If the child seems to bite when tired or hungry, you may want to look at your daily routine to be sure that they are getting enough sleep and nourishment.

Try to keep group play to short periods and small groups. Watch for situations where two children might want the same toy. For example, if the biting occurs when two children are fighting over a toy telephone, you may want to purchase a second one or perhaps try to distract them before a potential biting situation arises. It is not always possible to make very young children share. Toddlers do not necessarily have the skills to negotiate or understand another child's perspective.

Children in this situation need close adult supervision, especially if they are known to bite. However, even the best supervision, unless it is one-to-one, will not prevent some children from getting bitten.

If attention seems to be the main reason for biting, try to spend time with the child and praise them when they are doing more positive things. If the child is experiencing a stressful family or care giving situation, you will want to make everyday life as supportive and normal as possible. Predictable meals and bedtimes and extra time with a loving adult can help. Often, experiences like rolling, squishing, and pounding play dough or relaxing, splashing and playing in water are a great way to relieve tension.

Parent/career involvement

Working in partnership with our parents/carers is integral to the success of this behaviour policy. For it to work in practice, their contribution is vital.

We will achieve this by:

- Sharing the expectation of behaviour through informal and formal discussions with individuals and group of parents/carers.
- Talking to individual parents/carers about all aspects of all their child's behaviour daily, as well as at regular parent meetings
- Being fair, non-judgmental and consistent when discussing children's behaviour with parents/carers
- Providing extra support for parents/carers to help manage children's challenging behaviour e.g. through outside agencies

We hope parents/carers will feel able to:

- Inform us of any relevant changes to their circumstances which may affect their child's behaviour, e.g., new baby, moving to a new house, bereavement, divorce, separation, or hospitalization etc.
- Re-enforce expectations of positive behaviour by talking to their child at home
- Actively support staff by implementing positive behaviour strategies.

Strategies with children who engage in inconsiderate behaviour

- We require all staff, volunteers and student to use positive strategies for handling any inconsiderate behaviour, by helping children find solutions in ways which are appropriate for the children's ages and stages of development.
- Such solutions might include, for example, acknowledgement and labelling of feelings, explanation as to what was not acceptable, and supporting children to gain control of their feelings so that they can learn a more appropriate response.

- We ensure that there are enough popular toys and resources and sufficient activities available so that children are meaningfully occupied without the need for unnecessary conflict over sharing and waiting for turns.
- We acknowledge considerate behaviour such as kindness and willingness to share.
- We support each child in developing self-esteem, confidence and feelings of competence
- We avoid creating situations in which children receive adult attention only in return for inappropriate behaviour
- When children behave in inappropriate ways, we help them to understand the outcomes of their action and support them in learning how to cope more appropriately
- We never send children out of the room by themselves, nor do we use a “naughty chair” or a “time out” strategy that excludes children from the group, we do however use “reflective time” and “calming time” with a sand timer so that children have a clear idea of expectations
- We never use physical punishment, such as smacking or shaking. Children are never threatened with these, and we will not tolerate any parent or carer shouting, disciplining, or humiliating their child within the setting.
- We do not use techniques intended to single out and humiliate individual children
- We use physical restraint, such as holding, only to prevent physical injury to children or adults and or serious damage to property. Any physical restraint that may be used is recorded and parents are notified.
- Details of such an event (what happened, what action was taken and by whom, and the name of the witness) are brought to the attention of the manager and are recorded in the child’s personal file. The child’s parent’/s are informed on the same day
- In cases of serious misbehaviour, such as racial or other abuse, we make clear immediately the unacceptability of the behaviour and attitude by means of explanations rather than personal blame.
- We do not shout or raise our voices in a threatening way to respond to children inconsiderate behaviour
- We focus on ensuring a child’s attachment figure in the setting, their key person, is building a strong relationship to provide security to the child

Rough and tumble play and fantasy aggression

Young children often engage in play that has aggressive themes- such as superhero and weapon play; some children appear pre-occupied with these themes, but their behaviour is not necessarily a precursor to hurtful behaviour or bullying, although it may be inconsiderate at times and may need addressing using the strategies above.

Fantasy play often includes violent themes, presenting opportunities to discuss concepts of right and wrong. By engaging with the content of play, we can suggest alternative strategies for heroes and heroines, using these moments to foster empathy and explore conflict resolution.

- We recognise that teasing and rough and tumble play are normal for young children and acceptable within limits. We regard these kinds of play as pro-social and not as problematic or aggressive
- We will develop strategies to contain play that are agreed with the children, and understood by them, with acceptable behavioural boundaries to ensure children are not hurt
- We recognise that fantasy play also contains many violently dramatic strategies, blowing up, shooting, etc. And that these often refer to “goodies and baddies” and as such offer opportunities for us to explore concepts of right and wrong
- We can tune in to the content of the play, perhaps to suggest alternative strategies for heroes and heroines, making the most of the “teachable moments to encourage empathy and lateral thinking to explore alternative scenarios and strategies for conflict resolution.
